HATHAWAY'S

INDIANAPOLIS

Business Directory,

CITY GUIDE

AND

GAB-BOOK.

 1876.

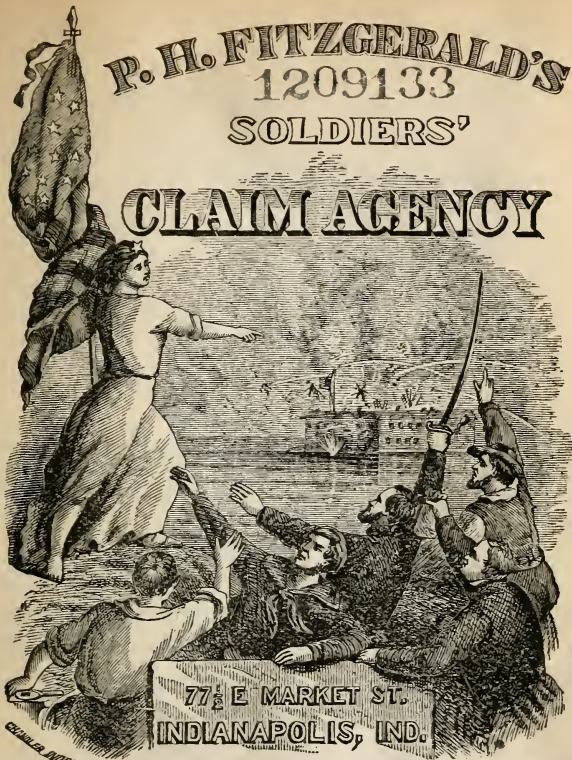

PREFACE.

The getter up of this little book has endeavored to give its purchasers full value for their money. As it is ostensibly a Business Directory and City Guide of the greatest railroad city on the continent, it should, in this respect alone, give the full price of the book in satisfaction. The literary matter is all original, and contributed by several of our leading celebrities, while the other "fillin'" is really valuable to every well-regulated family. As it might not be generally known just what were the motives that called into existence this little volume of usefulness, the author wishes it distinctly understood that it was solely to fill a long felt want.

YANKEE DOODLE.

Father and I went down to camp
Along with Captain Goodwin,
Where we see the men and boys
As thick as hasty puddin'.
There was Captain Washington
Upon a slapping stallion,
A giving orders to his men—
I guess there was a million.
And then the feathers on his hat,
They looked so tarnal fina,
I wanted Pockily to get
To give to my Jemima.
And then they had a swampin' gun
As large as log of maple,
On a deucid little cart—
A load for father's cattle.
And every time they fired it off
It took a horn of powder,
It made a noise like father's gun
Only a nation louder.
I went as near to it myself
As Jacob's under pinnin',
And father went as near ag'in—
I thought the deuce was in him.
Cousin Simon grew so bold
I thought he would have cocked it;
It scared me so I shinked off
And hung by father's pocket.
And Captain Davis had a gun,
He kind a clapped his hand on 't,
And stuck a crooked stabbing iron
Upon the little end on 't.
And there I see a pumpkin shell
As big as mother's basin,
And every time they touched it off
They scampered like the nation.
And then I see a little keg,
Its heads were made of leather,
They knocked upon 't with little sticks
To call the folks together.
And then they'd fife away like fun,
And play on cornstalk fiddles,
And some had ribbons red as blood
All wound about their middles.
The troopers too would gallop up
And fire right in our faces,
It scared me almost half to death
To see them run such races.
Old Uncle Sam came then to change
Some pan-cakes and some onions,
For lasses cakes to carry home
To give his wife and young ones.
I see another snarl of men
A digging graves, they told me,
So tarnal long, so tarnal deep,
They tended they should hold me.
It scared me so I hooked it off,
Nor slept as I remember,
Nor turned about 'till I got home
Locked up in mother's chamber.

It is announced at Washington that the appropriation bills are in danger, and that the Indian supply is already exhausted. Good gracious. What will Crook and Terry do in such an emergency? Anybody might have seen that, with the reckless manner in which they have been wasting this great American product, the supply couldn't last forever.

THERE is a minister on the southside who is quite deaf, ordinarily, but when on the cars, or amid any kind of tumult, he can hear the slightest whisper. This seemingly unaccountable phenomenon can be explained, scientifically, on a very simple hypothesis. His ear is like an opheclide—once get its cavernous recess filled and an additional breath, however slight, is clearly apparent.

THE OLD FLAG.

Boy go get that faded rag
Your old grand-dady put away,
It don't look much now like a flag
But I want it stuck up high to-day.

Yes you've got a newer one
With more specks and brighter bars,
For mine was made in days my son
When hands were scarce and stars were stars.

That flag was made at freedom's birth
And flung defiant to the air,
To stand 'mongst nations of the earth
'Twas nip and tuck to keep it there.

It flickered once, almost lost,
But don't call up that vale of tears,
Tears from all our hearts it cost
To keep it there a hundred years.

A hundred years it's lashed the breeze
And don't look now disposed to stop,
And 'till the gates of hell shall freeze
May it thar in triumph flop.

We'll celebrate this first centent'
And start the welkin' with our cheer,
For it's many dollars to a cent
At the next we wont be here.

But idle show and burst-head noise
Is not the way to show your zeal,
For once fill up the bowl my boys
With stuff that causes Rocks to feel.

When they call the soldier up
To rush to death or rout the foe,
You'll see him drain the silent cup,
Hump himself, then watch him go.

O. T. ROCKS.

Xenophon, the great Athenian re-treater, could get in his work beautifully at the present day, when it is so hard to get a fellow to treat once.

THE reason why a threshing given to a boy is called "whaling" is in account of the "blubber" it produces.

IF you call for whiskey "straight" the chances are that you will get it "crooked."

THREE card monte is the latest method of be-treying a man.

WHEN the gloom of night has settled down,
And thieves gently stealing o'er the town,
The question arises "who whacks?"
Quotation from Col. Snacks.

IF a man is "tight" his habits are said to be "loose."

INDIANAPOLIS ILLUSTRATED.

INDIANAPOLIS is noted for the number of its magnificent, palatial residences, a limited number of which we give. (Each of the proprietors illustrated is charged $50 to cover the cost of engraving:)

Residence of Hervey Bates.

The above is a faithful representation of the magnificent dwelling of our townsman Major Hervey Bates, a self-made man, who has accumulated a handsome competency by industry, integrity and cultivating his luck. The Major's palace is doric or pandoric in architecture.

Rock's Castle.

The next illustration represents the residence of our gifted townsman, O. T. Rocks, on North Illinois street. The style of the building, as will be seen, is Egyptian, the heavy Egyptian columns reminding one of pyramids. The design was found around the wrappings of a mummy of the time of King Faro, who got whipped in bucking against Moses' brace game.

John C. New's Residence.

Gothic—almost golgothic—is the style of its architecture.

L. W. Hasselman's Residence.

A villa of the Elizabethan era.

Something wanted in every House.

All Persons who contemplate building should examine

CONNOR'S PATENT SASH CORD FASTENER.

The Finest Building is Incomplete without them.

By using this fastener the sashes can be quickly unhuug without cutting the cords, to paint, glaze, to get furniture through the window, to polish the glass, or to renew the cords.

It saves the sashmaker the labor and expense of boring great holes in the stiles for the cords and it saves from 16 to 20 inches of cord to every window. It entirely dispenses with knots and nailing, and saves a great deal of troublesome labor.

The price of this fastener is moderate and really adds nothing nothing extra to the expense of the window, as it fully saves its cost in time and material, and expense for repairs, besides being far superior to the old method in point of convenience, durability and completeness.

They can be readily attached to any window old or new, where a chain, wire or hemp cord is used.

THE TRUE PRINCIPLES OF FINANCE.

No science is better misunderstood in this country, or misapplied with more skill, than that of finance. We propose to contribute a little if possible, to the general fund of misinformation which exists on the subject, and to condense the whole science into such brief space that any person can carry it around in his hat, if he has one, and the wayfaring man, though a book agent, need not err therein.

I. The main confusion on this subject grows out of the mispronunciation of the word. It should be pronounced fin-ance, with the accent strong on the second syllable. Any person trying this for a few days will be surprised to see how it will clear up his mind, and if conscientiously adhered to for six months, he will be almost as profoundly misinformed on the subject, as a member of Congress.

II. What is money? There has been a great waste of words on this point. Professor Bonhommie Price, one of the most genial writers on finance, says "money is a standard of value and a medium of exchange." Professor James Buchanan, of Indiana, says it isn't. Neither of them is quite right. Money—(we speak of it in the abstract, and stripped of all conventionalities); money, as generally understood by average minds, and not as beclouded, befogged and bewildered by writers on finance—money is money.

III. Having now brushed aside some of the verbal fallacies and popular errors which surround the subject, we are prepared to inquire, "What is currency?" Lo, the poor Indian, says it is wam-pum; Hon. Frank Landers says it is milk tickets. They are both wrong, because they both look at it from a Lo standpoint. Currency, (from the Latin verb curro, to run), is anything that may, can or will run. Thus sheep, hogs, cattle, molasses, buttermilk, sugar sap—all these are currency, because they all run; but the best of all currency is a promissory note, because, under favorable conditions, it will run longer and farther than any other. It also furnishes the best means of expanding and contracting the currency, since by the mere issuing of promissory notes, the currency can be inflated to any desired extent, while, if deemed expedient to pay them, it can thereby be easily contracted. The expansion of the currency by this means, is a pleasant and fascinating process, but great care should be taken not to push the contraction too rapidly, as this is often attended with serious consequences. Under some conditions a promissory note is very hard to lift, and men have been known to injure themselves for life in the operation. For this reason, as long as a note shows good running qualities, it may be best to let it run.

IV. And lastly, how shall we resume specie payments? Two ways have been suggested, one being to bring gold down, and the other to bring greenbacks up. Both of these plans are impracticable. The only true one is this: Let the government issue a long bond—say about 27,000 miles long—bearing interest at the rate of $3\frac{5}{365}$ per cent. (We name this rate of interest because three feet make a yard, and there are 365 days and 52 Sundays in a year). Then let the Secretary of the Treasury fund as many greenbacks as he can in this long bond, and put the remainder up at auction. This will cause gold to flow here from all parts of the world; confidence will revive, the wheels of trade will be set in motion, and resumption will come as gently as the falling due of a promissory note.

Much more might be said on this prolific subject, but any person who masters these fundamental principles will know as much about finance as most men, and quite as much as it is safe for any one man to know.

MONEY.

Of money there are two kinds—hard money and soft money.

Some of the catamount money which used to be current—if not gooseberry—may be concurrent, in Indiana, before the war, was what might be called “hard” money.

The bank of Gosport, for instance.

The money of the Southern Confederacy got to be rather “hard” just before the close of the war. It was easy to get but hard to spend.

The hardest money in the world, however, is that of Hayti, and it takes $600 of it to buy a cocktail.

If you want a cocktail in Hayti you must expect to pay for it.

In the pioneer days of Indiana the business of the country was transacted upon a hard money basis.

Beeswax, ginseng, tanbark, boneset and calamus were used as currency, but coonskins were the favorite money, because they fluctuated but little in value.

The coon and the coon's kin were in high favor among financiers

DURING the Port Hudson seige a certain officer was killed, and his brother officers had his body preserved in alchohol and sent home. Two acquaintances of the deceased meeting shortly after, one of them, who had not heard of his death, asked the other, "How is Capt. Smith?" "In excellent spirits," was the reply.

BY INDUSTRY, frugality, and prosperity a man might have accumulated enough in the past one hundred years to have lasted him a week at the Tencential.

THE man who can foretell the end of the present money problem will certainly be a good finance seer.

A CO-PARTNERSHIP business works to a mutual advantage when one man furnishes the money and the other the experience. In short time the experienced man will have the money and the other fellow the experience.

STREET LOAFERS now come under the head of illicit stills, but should be exempt from the vag. law so long as they have a lien (lien) on a house.

A CHAP who was trying some of them is of the opinion that the labels on some sardines need correcting. He thought the inscription should be "bone, less sardines."

"DONT HAVE TO."

The how and the why of don't have to
 Being fully and freely discussed,
 There's a word bearing far greater meaning,
 The word I allude to is "must."

Long after the phrase I don't have to
 Has moldered to ashes in rust,
 Like incense from embers and ashes,
 Rises ever the odor of must.

If your landlord you tell you don't have to Pay the bill that is honest and just,
 Perhaps he will give you this answer,
 My dear sir, you have to and must.

If you ask a fair young maiden to love you,
 And she seemeth a little nonplussed,
 Then steal your arm gently around her,
 And whisper, Oh! darling, you must.

And if ever a girl says "Don't have to,"
 When you ask her to take you on trust,
 Though you wish much those words to discredit,
 Tis'nt fair then to tell her she must.

And when with a few other fellows,
 You've been on a glorious "bust,"
 How hard then to turn your steps homeward,
 How sad the reflection—I must.

It is useless to say she don't have to
 Pack her duds and just get up and dust,
 When a kiss to sweet Biddy you've wafted,
 And your wife tells Miss Bridget she must.

AN AERIAL FLIGHT.

If there is any thing on earth more pleasurable than going up in a balloon, it is, to see some one else go up. I have, from my earliest recollection, had the greatest desire to experience its delights, but a counteracting desire not to, has always prevailed upon me to relinquish the pleasure to others. I did, however, on one occasion, venture to climb to the cross-trees of a fore and aft schooner, and, by the aid of my vivid imagination, felt all the joys of an ascension, which daring feat suggested the following appropriate stanzas :

How delightful to ascend
Far into impyreal hight,
And leave your cruel fellow men
And all your debts 'way out of sight.

I long to break the earth's attraction
In endless space, sail all alone
Where I'm not dunned to sore distraction,
And feel that I'm not too well known.

Perchance I'll strike some bounteous sphero,
Where all my wants are given free,
No more dodging, no more fear,
Oh ! that's too much luck for me.

Farewell bar-keep, bloated beat
Was never known to trust or treat ;
May providence your timbers tear,
And take your cursed carcass where
A carrion crow can't find it.

Farewell, laudlord with your bill,
May you want for stuff to fill
That spaceous gut of thine,
And ever seek and fail to find
Some one to trust you for a meal.

Farewell, thou stylish merchant tailor,
I hope some stubborn, heartless jailor
May lock you in at last,
And keep you 'till my bill has passed
From your mind and lawful tenure.

O. T. ROCKS.

F. CHRISTMAN & CO., Proprietors
Cor. Mississippi and Pearl Streets, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

As he crammed the contents of a ten cent paper of fine-cut into a formidable opening in his benign countenance, said he, as he rolled it as a savory morsel from side to side, "I'm kinder down on terbacker chewin'. It's apt to give one a bad breath, but this Highland Gem article really makes it as sweet as the balm of a thousand flowers."

GRANT has had twenty-six changes in his cabinet. Some may have been for the better, and quite likely some were for the worse, but it is a well-known fact to all lovers of the weed that Christman has never once changed the quality of his tobaccos.

AN exchange in speaking of the injurious effects of tobacco on the human system, notices the untimely taking off of an inveterate chewer, in his town, at the age of one hundred and five years. That boy's father ought to have taken him in hand several years before. His last request was for a chew of "Highland Gem."

YUM YUM, YUM. Chew Christman's "White Lily."

BASE BALL.

Rev. Dr. Somnos, of the Church of the Fragrant Profusion, being about to take his annual vacation, his choir determined to keep themselves in wind and muscle for the fall campaign against the hosts of Satan, by forming a base ball club and practicing the noble game during the hot months. After rehearsal the other night, a meeting was had, and the members were put to their ease at once by getting into a quarrel, first over the admission of lady members to the rights, privileges, honors and labors of the association, and then about a name. The first proposition was gallantly settled by admitting the ladies to full and equal membership. This was, in fact, absolutely necessary, inasmuch as the choir consisted of a double quartette, which, by including the organist, would just make up the requisite nine. The ladies fought valiantly for their rights, and when they got them, didn't know what to do with them. They adored the game, and unanimously voted it nice, but felt some hesitancy in appearing before the public on the field. The first soprano wanted to know how a lady, with one hand clutching her skirts and the other holding her parasol, could wield a bat or catch a ball on the fly, and the second alto declared her utter inability to run the bases while the fashion of high heels and pull-backs remained in favor. A happy thought struck the organist. He had recently joined the Masons, and had there learned that there were operative and speculative Masons, and that the latter served a more noble and glorious purpose. Why couldn't that principle be applied to the club? He therefore proposed that this be strictly a speculative club. At this neat cutting of the Gordian knot there was a tremendous outburst of applause and an enthusiastic clapping of gloves. The most pronounced elau was at once established. The ball, so to speak, then proceeded with vigor.

The contest over a name afforded a spirited and delightful wrangle, which lasted for some time. The organist, an Englishman, who had earned the right to take a prominent position by the brilliant tactics above displayed, thought it would be the fair thing to, and would be paying the mountains a flattering compliment, to adopt the name of the "'Appy-nines," and with a 'igh-bred titter remarked "'Ow 'igh is that?" The basso profundo, who is a member of the geographical society, volunteered the information in sephulchral tones, that the Apennines were not considered a remarkably high range, none of the peaks reaching the region of perpetual snow, Monte Corno being not 9,542 feet high, and even Ætna, which was considered as belonging to the Appennine system, is only 10,875 feet above the—

He was here informed that this was not a society for the dissemination of useful knowledge, and advised to adjust his clothing. It was further suggested that if he was a fair representative of the organization, it would be the Base Bawl club par excellence.

These and like little pleasantries over, and after many ballots, they decided upon the title of "The Tuneful Nine." It was further unanimously agreed that it would be neither aristocratic nor professional from their high standpoint to adopt the lingo of the common base ball clubs, and that the designation of the various artists who composed the club should be in keeping with their character. The first base should be called the primo basso, or basso profundo, the second base the basso secundo; the organist should act as short-stop for various reasons; the first tenor should officiate as pitcher. This was carried against the whispered protest of the second soprano, who declared he was never known to give the correct pitch. The second tenor was appointed catcher. He was a young man of great expectations, and was universally conceded to be a first-rate catch. The first alto, who was proud of a voice of unusual compass, reaching far down the alphabet without the slightest break, volunteered to take the place of third base, and her sister contralto and the two soprani decided to enclose the field in their purview.

So the club was formed and had a supper to inaugurate the happy event. The most extravagant arguries are indulged in of their success. The charming first soprano is noted for her elegant and elaborate runs, and she is sure to capture the second base in the long run. The primo basso knows all about the intricacies of the most difficult score, and is never put out by anything. The second alto can excel the historical swallow in the homeward fly. By the time the summer vacation is over they expect to be able, with the assistance of the congregation, to whitewash the reverend doctor, who, as he will visit all the fashionable watering places during his absence, will undoubtedly need it by the time the fall season opens.

“PULL DOWN YOUR VEST.”

The origin of the above classic expression came about in the following manner: The son of a countryman was sent to this city to get a suit of clothes, but by mistake got into the wrong clothing store and procured an outfit, taking the judgment of the proprietor on the fit. On donning the suit, everyone noticed that the pants were a world too big in the seat, one leg three inches shorter than the other, while mysterious little aperatures in the knees plainly indicated the ravages of moth. His coat sat on him like a gunny bag on a gatepost. But these were nothing in comparison with the outrageous conduct of a dollar and a half vest. It was too short at the bottom and top, and in vain he tried to pull it down. On every side mischievious boys and loafers yelled frantically, “pull down your vest,” and the uproar increased until the persecuted youth tore it off and threw it in the gutter. The young man had been directed to the When Clothing Store, but was inveigled into another under the impression it was the right place, and now the “WHEN” folks have resolved to issue their “Declaration of Principles.”

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES.

WHEN, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for the people of a great republic to lay aside the raiments that have sheltered them from the chilly blasts of winter, and the oppressive heat of summer, to dissolve the bands which have connected them with garments which have almost faded out of existence, and to assume the right and power to occupy and inhabit a suit of clothes to which the laws of nature entitles them, a decent respect to the opinion of mankind and their pockets requires that they should declare the causes that impel them to visit the WHEN.

We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men have the right to wear good goods, and to buy them at wholesale prices.

That, to secure these rights, branch stores should be instituted among cities, deriving their goods direct from their large wholesale manufactory in New York, which will enable the consumer to buy direct and save one profit.

We, the representatives of one of the largest wholesale manufacturing houses in New York, do therefore, by the authority of our manufacturing house, solemnly publish and declare that all connections between us and high price houses in this vicinity is totally dissolved, and that, as manufacturers, we have full power and ability to retail at wholesale prices, and to do all other acts which conduce to the interests of the buying community. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the continued patronage of a generous public, we pledge our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

Mud cottage of a bloated full of bonded whiskey.

The Author's luxurious abode near Sleigho. A three-story (in length) Grecian cottage, with native trees (gourd and pumpkin) in the rear. Designed by A. Kreditur, who still has designs on the same. Built after (a good while) the style of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, and slightly after Barnum's Hippodrome in New York City. A number of beautiful fountains in the neighborhood give the place a niagara sort of appearance, and makes life a real pleasure. Rustic sofas and a fine verandah belonging to a neighbor's house, are conveniently arranged for the benefit of creditors arriving on early trains, who do not wish to disturb the repose of the author.

SENTIMENTS CENTENNIAL.

BY ENOS B. REED.

One hundred years ago, Columbla then
Could boast of women fair and stalwart men—
Women whose thoughts were not alone on dress,
And men whose words were words of truthfulness.

There were few foibles in those good old days,
But sound sense ruled in customs and in ways.
Men were not monkeys, women had some brains,
And virtue was rewarded for its pains.

Vice was not honored in those days of old—
Men thought of something else than shining gold,
While greenbacks, now the question of the day,
Were all unknown, in a financial way.

Women there were, one hundred years ago,
Who lived for something else than fleeting show,
And men whose thoughts on office did not always run,
On getting, first, and then, on keeping one.

Things then were what they seemed, or mostly so—
When souls were tried, a hundred years ago—
And holy men there were who walked with God,
Nor sinful paths with sinful worldlings trod!

The Word was preached—'twas Jesus crucified—
The house of God was not a house of pride—
The world was all forgot within its walls,
And sinners hearkened to the heavenly calls.

Few traitors then within the halls of State,
And fewer thieves—to steal did not make great.
Who loved his country was then honored most—
The patriot—not the thief—was then a host.

Alas! how times have changed! Columbla now
Falls down to worship and to humbly bow
To gold and greenbacks, on pride's altars placed,
While honest men look on and weep—disgraced!

O, for a change! Some honest hand to guide
The ship of State. Be this our chiefest pride—
That to our children we'll bequeath the trust
As we received it from the good and just.

And when a hundred years again have fled,
And those now living slumber with the dead,
May freedom's banner float afar and free,
Honored alike on land and on the sea!

PIN BACKS.

When I was young, the girls were girls,
But now the girls are frights,
Perambulating through the streets,
Pinned up in pin-back-tights.

They laugh and flirt with city swells,
And simper as they prate
Of conquest of an empty heart,
An empty purse and pate.
